

The quantitative analysis of posture and motion in humans is a rapidly expanding biomedical field and one of considerable interest from a clinical perspective; it is able to define the motion strategy of a subject quantitatively in a non invasive way and to supply the clinician with crucial information for the assessment of patient.

The Project TRAMA Network was born with the aim of training researchers in the field of quantitative analysis of movement creating a Network among all the Institutions involved in the Project.

The aims of the Project are:

- Training about the use of the equipment usually present in a Motion Analysis Lab, about the use of new experimental set-ups for movement analysis and about the development of new methodologies.
- Training via web and in practical sessions in the Labs, about the evaluation of the data acquired in motion analysis Labs and their clinical meaning.
- Network realization for a continue teaching assistance within different Institutions involved in the Project.

TRAMA Project is one of the project of Programme ALFA (America Latina – Formacion Academica), which is a programme of co-operation between higher education institutions of the European Union and Latin America.
